VEGETINE

Purifies the Blood, Renovates and Invigorates the Whole System

Its Medical Properties Are

ALTERATIVE, TONIC, SOLVENT AND DIURETIC.

VEGETINE is made exclusively from the juices of carefully selected barks, roots and herbs, and so strongly concentrated that it will effectually eradicate from the system every taint of Scrofula, Scrofulous Humor, Tumors, Cancer, Cancerous Humor, Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Syphilitic Diseases, Canker, Faintness at the Stomach, and all diseases that arise from impure blood. Sciatica, Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Gout and Spinal Complaints can only be effectually cured through the blood.

For Ulcers and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, Pustules, Pimples, Blotches, Tetter, Scald Head and Ringworm, VEGETINE has never failed to effect a permanent cure.

For Pains in the Back, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, Female Weakness, Leucorrhœa, arising from internal ulceration, and Uterine diseases and General Debility, Vegetine acts direct upon the causes of these complaints. It invigorates and strengthens the whole system, acts upon the secretive organs, allays inflammation, cures ulceration, and regulates the bowels.

For Catarrh, Dyspepsia, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart, Headache, Piles, Nervousness and General Prostration of the Nervous System, no medicine has ever given such perfect satisfaction as the Vegetine. It purifies the blood, cleanses all of the organs, and possesses a controlling power over the nervous system.

The remarkable cures effected by Vegetine have induced many physicians and apothecaries whom we know to prescribe and use it in their own families.

In fact Vegetine is the best remedy yet discovered for the cure of diseases of the most reliable Blood Purifier yet placed before the public.

UNQUALIFIED APPRECIATION.

BOSTON, Nov 18, 1875

H. R. STEVENS Esq.

DEAR SIR:—During the past five years I have had ample opportunity to judge of the merit of VEGETINE, and I have found it for complaints attending a lady of delicate health, with more beneficial results than anything else which she ever tried. I have given it to my children under almost every circumstance, often using a large dose, and always with marked benefit. I have taken it myself with such great benefit that I cannot find words to express my unqualified appreciation of its goodness. While performing my duties as a Police Officer in this city, it has been my lot to fall in with a great deal of sickness. I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetine, and I never knew of a case where it did not prove all that was claimed for it. Particularly in cases of a debilitated or impoverished state of the blood its effects are really wonderful, and for all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood it appears to work like a charm, and I do not believe there are any circumstances under which Vegetine can be used with injurious results, and I shall always take a pleasure to give any further information as to what I know about Vegetine.

H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir:—This is to certify that I have used your "Blood Preparation" in my family for several years, and I think that for Scrofula or Cancer in all manners or Rheumatic Affections it cannot be excelled. I call it a Blood Purifier and spring medicine, and is the best thing I have ever used, and I have used almost everything. I can cheerfully recommend it to any one in need of such a medicine. Yours respectfully,

MRS. A. A. DINSMORE, 19 Russell St.

A Source of Great Anxiety.

ABOUT "IGNORANCE."

In the wail of the Portland Argus over the "ignorance of the people of Maine," it specially alleged that they have never learned the provisions of the XIVth Constitutional Amendment. Our impression is that the Republican people of Maine know all about it and helped to ingraft it upon the Constitution while the Argus and its party were opposing it. But we do not expect much from the Argus, and here is the Boston Post, which used to be deemed "reliable" by Democrats declaring that "the amended Constitution simply prohibits the payment of any and all such claims growing out of the war, just as it prohibits forever the payment of the Confederate debt." This refers to the Southern claims aggregating millions already presented in Congress for reimbursement of losses occasioned by the war, other than the emancipation of slaves and the Confederate debt. The Post wants to show that the safeguards provided by the Republicans will prevent its party from passing the bills they have introduced. But we fail to find any such prohibition in the Amendment, which simply declares:

But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

This by no means "prohibits" the class of claims alluded to by the Post, which are presented, not as "debts or obligations incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion," but as claims for reimbursement for property taken by United States officers and soldiers, for damages to buildings, destruction of bridges, factories, sugar houses, etc., by the forces engaged in suppressing the rebellion. It is estimated that these claims already presented will aggregate a sum about equal to our National Debt; and when the Post asserts that the XIVth Amendment offers a bar to their payment, is it exhibiting ignorance or—what?

CALHOUN DOCTRINES REVIVED.

[From the New York Times.]

Mr. Bayard, of Delaware, has come northward to speak in behalf of his beloved South. Probably the South could send no better man. He is one of the most dignified and consistent members of his party in the Senate. He has character, and is too evidently animated by conviction to be suspected of the arts which belong to the demagogue. Just as Yancey was the fittest expositor of the secession movement on the eve of the rebellion, so Bayard may be taken as the fairest exponent of the principles which in the Southern mind have outlived the wreck of the rebellion and are the key to all that is left of Southern statesmanship. In either case the credentials are unassailable. No intelligent man at the time disputed Mr. Yancey's title as the apostle of disunion and slavery, and none questions the authority of Mr. Bayard as the apostle of the contemporary Southern Democracy, to which Mr. Tilden is indebted for his nomination, and without whose united support he has not the remotest chance of an election. Mr. Bayard's visit to this city, to Brooklyn, and to neighboring districts therefore partakes a good deal of the nature of a mission. He has come hither to correct misapprehensions and to preach the pure gospel of Democracy as it is taught and practiced in the Southern States.

And what is Mr. Bayard's doctrine? Is it of a reassuring nature, judged by the standard of the loyalty which saved the Union and is still ready to defend it? Are the ideas inculcated by the Senator from Delaware calculated to allay the fears which the course of events in the rice and cotton-growing States has excited among the Northern people? Do they furnish any solid ground for believing that the views taught by Jefferson and Madison, emphasized by Calhoun, and acted upon by Jeff. Davis and the leaders of the Confederacy, have been repented of by the Democracy of to-day, and no longer control its policy? On the contrary, it is only necessary to turn to Mr. Bayard's speeches in Brooklyn and this city, as reported by the World to discover that the resolutions of 1798–'9 are cherished as ardently as ever, and that Calhoun did not more directly affirm the sovereignty of the State as against the authority of the Union, than does the present acknowledged representative of the Southern Democrats. The Brooklyn speech, being that which is the more fully reported, supplies all the evidence that can be needed upon this point. It leaves no room for doubt as to Mr. Bayard's position. Citizenship, as he defines it has nothing whatever to do with the Union; it pertains exclusively to the State. A voter resident in New York votes not as a citizen of the United States, but as a citizen of New York. The National Government has nothing to do with him, and—according to Mr. Bayard—he must not look to it for privileges or protection. "The soul of liberty" in this country is, in Mr. Bayard's opinion, encased in State laws, and any interference on the part of the Federal power to protect the individual voter from fraud or violence would be "fatal to our form of government." Accept this declaration of principle, and the supporters of Wade Hampton in South Carolina have only to ride about the State with torch and pistol from now until the day of election to break down the Republican majority and to give the Democratic minority all the power they want. On the same line of argument, Mr. Tilden['s] [illegible] Democratic friends in this city [illegible]

[illegible] framed, the Republic of to-day is little more than a [illegible]. It is a [illegible] of States, each of which is supreme within its own boundaries, and may at any moment cut the [illegible] cord that holds them together.—Mr. Bayard does not state the last proposition in so many words. All his reasoning and illustrations, however, point to it as the consistent and logical sequence of the principles he proclaims with so much clearness and candor. Change certain of the illustrations, and a man who had been absent from the country for sixteen years might easily imagine, on reading Mr. Bayard's Brooklyn speech, that he was listening to Mr. Benjamin's argument on the floor of the Senate, or to some less florid Yancey asserting the sacred right of secession against Federalism from which the Union derives its vitality and its glory.—We know of no reported speech, indeed, in which the unadulterated doctrine of State rights which culminated in rebellion is more concisely or more defiantly set forth than in this speech, addressed by the Delaware Senator to an audience of Brooklyn Democrats, and by them applauded enthusiastically.

Nor is it to be supposed that Mr. Bayard in adopting this tone simply took his chance of approval. None knows better than he the issues that are involved in this canvass, or the antecedents that render Mr. Tilden peculiarly acceptable to the secession Democracy. The convention which nominated Mr. Pierce in 1852 affirmed the right of secession in the broadest terms, and Mr. Pierce, a New Hampshire Democrat, lived up to it, in his imbecile fashion, during his term of office. The Democracy repeated the resolution in 1856, and the traitorous Buchanan, the last of the Democratic Presidents, gave effect to it when he declared that the Federal Government could not prevent the disruption of the Union. Neither Pierce nor Buchanan, however—neither Mr. Black, Buchanan's Attorney-General, nor Mr. Fernando Wood, at a critical moment Mayor of New York—more unreservedly surrendered all that the secessionists demanded, than did Mr. Tilden in the fierce controversy which ushered in the rebellion. Reference has frequently been made to the mischievous resolution adopted by the Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1864, and to Mr. Tilden's share in its promulgation. Infinitely more suggestive, as an expression of principle, was Mr. Tilden's letter to Hon. William Kent, published in October, 1860. It is only necessary to revert to this document to see that its author was in complete accord with Jeff. Davis and the rest of the secessionists, both as to the right of the South to secede, and the inability of the North to preserve the Union. The South knew its man when it nominated Mr. Tilden at St. Louis; and Mr. Bayard knows of what stuff the New York Democracy is made when he expounds for its benefit the doctrine of Jefferson and Calhoun.

THE YELLOW-FEVER SCOURGE.

The terrible accounts of the ravages of yellow-fever in several localities in Georgia, cannot fail to excite the keenest sympathies of the people of the whole country. The mortality in Savannah and Brunswick has been frightful and the reports recall the dread seasons of pestilence in the South which in past years commanded the horror-stricken interest of the Nation. The calls for immediate assistance come with an intensity that appeals to all generous hearts, and we hope that measures may be devised for extending the benevolence of our people to the sufferers. Will not some of our public-spirited citizens move in this matter while the necessity is pressing?

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

The official returns for Penobscot County show that we have given the Banner Majority of the State for Governor, 2,944 against 759 last year, a net gain of 2,185. Kennebec comes next to us with a majority of 2,873, a gain of 1,247.

A "NEGATIVE" MAN.

Mr. George William Curtis addressed a large Republican mass meeting at Concord, N. H., last Friday evening, in which he predicted that New York would vote for Hayes in November, and said: "Mr. Dorsheimer told us in Faneuil Hall, the other evening, that General Hayes was 'an amiable, well-meaning, and negative man.' A negative man, is he? Yes. When the tide of battle was raging in our country he put a negative upon George H. Pendleton in Ohio. After the war he put a negative upon Senator Thurman. Last Fall, in the hardest contest ever waged in this country between honest and rag money, he put a negative on old Bill Allen. And mark my word, on the 7th of November next he will put another negative upon Samuel J. Tilden."

TILDEN'S WAR RECORD.

Here is something which should be of interest to the Union soldiers who are invited to "ratify" Tilden at Albany next month.—Mr. Daniel P. Jones, an authorized agent of the United States Christian Commission during the war, has made oath to the following facts, which throw some light upon Tilden's war record:

NEW YORK, Sept. 21, 1876.
I, Daniel P. Jones, of the city of New York, being duly sworn, depose and say that during the time when the United States Christian Commission was in existence, and about September of 1863, whose mission it was to furnish supplies of provisions and medicine to the sick and wounded soldiers, (I then holding an appointment under said Commission,) Mr. Samuel J. Tilden was waited on by me and solicited to aid, when the said S. J. Tilden made in substance the following reply: "I would rather see all the soldiers starve to death than give them one cent," and the said S. J. Tilden did not contribute.
DANIEL P. JONES.

Sworn to before me this 21st day of September, 1876.
WILLIAM FURNESS.
Notary Public in and for the City and County of New York, No. 84.

A SENSIBLE REPLY TO AN IDIOT.

A correspondent of the Terre Haute Gazette asked Rev. E. F. Howe, who is doing some editorial work on the Mail, whether he indored certain theological beliefs of Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, who is advertised to speak in that place. Mr. Howe replies in a lengthy card, from which we quote:

"Having given my answer, in order to avoid a misunderstanding, I desire to add that I do not require of the party with which I act, and for which I use either my pen or my voice, that it shall bring here to speak only such men as agree with me on theological matters. These political speakers, as I understand it, come here to advocate political truths, and not to preach theology. And I desire to say, minding what I say, without equivocation and without any ifs, that I would sooner listen to, or invite here as a political speaker, an infidel who is true to his country, than a member of my own church who, either intentionally or by mistake, was working for the harm of his country. In a word, when it comes to expounding political duties I should unhesitatingly give the preference to an infidel patriot over an orthodox rebel."

THE CONGRESSIONAL VOTE.

Having become tired of waiting for the arrival of those official returns of the Congressional vote in the Madawaska settlements of Aroostook, we have concluded to publish the official returns from the rest of the Fourth District as kindly furnished us from the office of the Secretary of State, and to approximate the total result by giving the Madawaska returns as reported in the "Modoc" papers of Aroostook. The lacking returns are said to have been brought to Houlton shortly after the election by Mr. Peter Charles Keegan, who was in close consultation with Mr. Edmund Madigan, also a candidate on the Democratic ticket. The most plausible explanation of the delay in forwarding the papers to Augusta is that Keegan and Madigan have been acting upon a paraphrase of the injunction to: "Tarry at Jericho, (Houlton) until your beards (majorities) be grown." What effect the Houlton tarrying will have upon the Madawaska figures can only be told when they make their official appearance at Augusta.

We have given below the official returns for this year, with the exceptions mentioned, and also tables of last year's vote for convenience of comparison. The footings show that the total vote of 20,684 in 1875 has been enlarged to 23,933 this year, an increase of 3,249. Of this increase Mr. Powers has gained over the vote for Gen. Plaisted last year 558 in Aroostook; 1,141 in Penobscot and 312 in Piscataquis; a total gain of 2,011. Mr. Donworth has gained over Mr. Madigan's vote of last year 204 in Aroostook; 104 in Piscataquis and fallen behind 30 votes in Penobscot, making his total gain 278. The Oak vote of 960 makes up the increase of 3,249. Deducting Donworth's gross gain of 278 in the District from that of Powers 2,011, gives a net gain of 1,733 for the latter over the majority of last year. Notwithstanding the diversion of 960 votes for Mr. Oak, the result gives Mr. Powers the handsome majority of 2,701 over Mr. Donworth, and a clear majority over all of 1,741. The total majority over Donworth is 3,661. Below we give the vote in detail:—

A TIGER HUNT IN NEW JERSEY.—A tiger which recently escaped from a menagerie is prowling about Burlington county, N. J., subsisting on sheep and other farm stock. A few nights ago, at [illegible], John Smith, Henry Parker and a man named Gibbons, farmers on whose premises depredations had been perpetrated, determined to watch for the animal, which they supposed to be a dog. All three were provided with rifles. At half-past eleven the animal was seen to approach the farm yard, and then for the first time its movements showed that it was an enormous animal of the cat species, and not a dog, as had been supposed; but it was not until it was within ten feet of them and escape was impossible that they discovered it to be a tiger. They turned to fly, but finding it had retreated on seeing them, they turned, and Smith and Parker both fired at such close quarters that it was possible to see that one of the balls had taken effect in the tiger's thigh. With a terrific growl the beast turned upon them and leaping the barn yard fence made for Parker, who struck at the tiger with the butt of his rifle with such force that he knocked himself down, thus saving himself, and the tiger pursued Smith and Gibbons, who were running. Gibbons then fired, striking him in the groin, the wound being plainly seen by Parker, near whom he passed as he turned and limped toward the swamp so rapidly that they were only able to pursue him a short distance. On the following morning he was traced by the blood marks for half a mile into the swamp where the pursuit ended.—The affair has caused great alarm among the farmers of the surrounding country.

Nearly 30,000 voters registered in Brooklyn, Tuesday.

The silver commission have selected Benj. F. Nourse of Boston, Gen. Dix of New York and Wm. Groesbeck of Ohio, as experts.

CLARION
Portable Cooking Range!

Valuable improvements have been incorporated into this Range, which gives it the advantage over any other Range in the market, and all who have seen and tested it, have been disabused of the idea that the day of invention and improvement had passed.
We claim to have produced the most elegant and economical, compact, and convenient Cooking Range ever offered to the public, and we have no hesitation in saying that all who will carefully examine it will be convinced of these facts.
All in want of a new Range are invited to call and see for themselves and obtain a pamphlet containing description and the names of parties having them in use, to whom we refer.

The Standing Rock Indians Surrender.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. A Western despatch says the Standing Rock Indians have surrendered six mules and a number of American horse's band in addition to those surrendered by Kill Eagle. Kill Eagle says a son of Ink Paduty killed Custer. He rushed on him, threw Custer's gun up and stabbed him in the breast, and passed on; returning, he shot him through the head. Lieut. Harrington, with 20 men, escaped some six miles but were finally chased into an alkalie bed and shot down; none were captured. One soldier who spoke Sioux surrendered and passed over his gun and revolver, but they shot him with his own gun. Sitting Bull reproved them severely for this; he wanted him brought to camp. The Indians at Standing Rock have been informed they must bring in their young men or their annuities will be withheld, but they laugh at the idea.

WASHINGTON.

"Stark, Staring Mad."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. There was considerable excitement in and about the Capitol yesterday afternon by the desperate attempt of an unknown insane man to commit suicide by jumping from the balcony around the rotunda. TWEED.

He Is Delivered Up to the United States.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. A Vigo, Spain, special says Tweed, under an escort of Spanish soldiers, was taken from prison and marched through the unfrequented streets and put on a boat belonging to the frigate Franklin and taken on board. The citizens are indignant at his surrender to Americans.

The Companion of the "Boss."

Another Vigo special says Tweed offered very little objection to his removal. He was treated with every consideration and the quarters of Rear Admiral Case were assigned to him. Tweed's companion, who gave the name of Wm. Hunt and who has been a prisoner with him, was taken on board the Franklin, but was almost immediately set at liberty and allowed to return ashore. In dress and appearance he looks like a mechanic. He says they were well treated in prison but refuses to give any account of Tweed's wanderings and maintains that the man arrested is named Secor. Hunt went to a hotel and there joined an American about 35 years old, bald-headed with sandy hair and beard who registered his name as R. Sands. The Franklin with Tweed on board was to sail at two this afternoon for New York.

The Franklin and Tweed en route for New York.

VIGO, Sept. 27. The Franklin sailed this morning direct for New York with Tweed on board.

RUNAWAY. Dr. Briggs' horse ran away last evening, starting from the corner of Hammond and Main streets. He ran up Ohio street and stopped and turned in front of a water trench and came back the street, and in turning to go into the stable the carriage struck the corner of the fence and the top was broken off. It was otherwise damaged.

A young lady was driving up Third street yesterday afternoon, and in turning the corner of Third and Union streets the carriage struck a stone post and was upset. The lady was thrown out, but she clung to the reins very pluckily, and after the horse had dragged her about considerably a gentleman came to the rescue and seized the horse.

HORTICULTURAL EXHIBITION. The fourth annual exhibition of the Orono Horticultural Society opened yesterday morning under very favorable auspices at the Town Hall. The hall presented a very animated appearance Tuesday while the exhibitors were bringing in their contributions. The display of fruit and other farm products is very fine. The ladies have been very energetic and there is a very generous display of their handiwork, including worsted work and drawings and paintings of recognized merit and skill. The present exhibition is said to excel any of the previous ones. Our Orono friends enter into their exhibitions with very creditable energy, and they never fail in making a very satisfactory display.

PLEASANT AFFAIR. Last Tuesday being the fifth anniversary of the marriage of Rev. E. W. Preble, of the Universalist church, his friends and parishioners determined to tender him a surprise in the evening. They met and presented themselves in a body at his residence laden with wooden presents of all kinds, including useful as well as ornamental articles, many of them being of beautiful design. After the jolly party had arranged their presents on the table, E. C. Brett, Esq., on request of the friends presented the articles as a token of the esteem and love of those present for their pastor and his wife. His remarks were very appropriate and happy. In closing he wished them joy and happiness for the future. Mr. Preble replied in his usual pleasant vein, closing his remarks by reciting a pretty little poem which he had written that day and dedicated to his wife. JUBILATION IN VEAZIE.

Republican Flag-raising, Torch-light Parade, Illuminations and Jubilee meeting—Our friends bound to redeem the Town.

Our Republican friends in Veazie on Wednesday evening held their jubilation (hitherto delayed by unfavorable weather) over the Republican victory in Maine and the gratifying gain in their own town. The exercises commenced by throwing out a new and handsome United States Flag bearing the names of Hayes and Wheeler, across the main street, Dr. Huckins, President of the Hayes and Wheeler Club, making an eloquent and stirring address as the new banner was unfurled. A torch-light procession was then formed by the Club and other citizens and the parade passed through every part of the village, the houses and other buildings along the route being very brilliantly and many of them elegantly illuminated and decorated with Chinese lanterns, transparencies, etc. The demonstration was the finest ever made in the town and the Republicans were full of enthusiasm.

After the parade the Town Hall was filled to overflowing by the citizens of both sexes, and a hearty ratification meeting was presided over by Deacon Warren. He introduced Joseph F. Snow, Esq., of this city, who briefly responded, excusing himself from making a speech and giving way to Hon. Lewis Barker, who made a most telling and eloquent address of about an hour, exciting the warmest enthusiasm, and receiving great applause.

The whole proceedings were carried out in a highly successful manner, and our Republican friends in Veazie are entitled to great credit for the zeal they have displayed. The progressive and younger men of the town have become tired of being classed among Democratic communities and they mean to follow up the work they have begun until Veazie is brought squarely into the Republican line.

Police Court.

The following is the Police Court record of yesterday: Bridget Coney, search and seizure, discharged; Abijah Tripp, tramp, 30 days and committed; Joseph Ham, tramp, 30 days and committed; Jerry Cronan, drunkenness, $3 and costs and paid; Timothy Mahoney, drunkenness and disturbance at the Bangor House stables, Sept. 20, 30 days and committed.

Harvest Festival in Exeter.

[For the Whig & Courier.]

A thanksgiving service for the ingathering of the harvest, was held in Holy Trinity Church, Exeter on Sunday, Sept. 24th. The church was very tastefully decorated with flowers, autumn leaves, fruit, corn and grain. The inscription, "Lord of the harvest, hear," neatly arranged with corn was placed beneath the Chancel window and a beautiful marble tablet, in memory of the late Richard Price, who first revived this ancient and beautiful service in this part of the country, having been placed in the church on the preceding Saturday, added very much to the general effect. The morning service consisted of the usual morning prayer, a sermon, appropriate for the occasion, by Rev. Thomas Marston, of Dexter, and Holy Communion.

In the afternoon there was a Choral service, the Creed and Litany being intoned, and a Lecture by the Pastulant, Mr. G. S. Hill.

A goodly number were present in the morning, and in the afternoon the church was filled with a respectful and attractive congregation. G. S. H.

NEW MAGAZINES.

In LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for October, the Centennial article is devoted to the Art Galleries, and is full of instructive and discriminating criticism, which will greatly aid the visitor in forming a correct judgment of the collection and selecting what is most worthy of careful study. The illustrations, though mere outlines, intended to suggest the subjects and grouping, will also be found useful. "An African Fairhaven" is the title of a well written paper, also illustrated, descriptive of the island of Goree, a memorable slave station in former days, and alternately a French and English possession. Sicilian Folk-Lore, by Professor T. F. Crane, of Cornell, is rich in amusing and fanciful stories and traditions, while Mr. Edward King's account of A Day with the Volvo-[illegible] graphically written, and will interest all who sympathise with the efforts of the Bosnians and other Christian subjects of the Porte to escape from an oppressive rule. Lady Barker continues her entertaining Letters from South Africa, and Mr [illegible] to '65 gives some glimpses of domestic life in the Southern during the war. A Fiery Furnace is the title of a strange and decidedly thrilling story with a basis of scientific fact and theory that remove it from the common category of fiction. Miss Olney's serial, Love in Idleness, advances four chapters, and maintains its spirited dialogue in the midst of fresh complications and developments. The poetry of the number is by Maurice Thompson, Emma Lazarus, and Will Wallace Harney, and the Monthly Gossip includes an account by Mrs. Hooper of the Omnibuses of Paris, with other short and readable papers. The Publishers, we see, announce a new serial by George Macdonald, The Marquis of Lossie, to begin in the November number. The admirers of Malcolm will not fail to notice the significance of the title.

THE OCTOBER ATLANTIC is one of the best of fireside companions for these cool fall evenings, and readers will find it of more than usual interest for even so excellent a magazine as it ever is. The list of contents is as follows: The Battles About Atlanta I, by O. O. Howard; Fable, by Thomas Bailey Aldrich; The Thorsdale Telegraph; Giving up the World, by Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt; Neighborhoods of Jerusalem, by Charles Dudley Warner; October, by H. H.; Old Woman's Gossip XV Frances Anne Kemble; Incantation, by G. P. Lathrop; George Sand, by Thos. Sergeant Perry; The Songs of the Troubadours, by Harriet W. Preston; The American, XI, XII, by Henry James, Jr.; Oliver Twist, by Edwin P. Whipple; A Librarian's Work, by John Fisher; Characteristics of the International Fair, IV. The departments of Recent Literature and Education are as usual full and valuable. H. O. Houghton & Co., Publishers, Boston.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

SHAKESPEARE SUPERBLY ILLUSTRATED. We have before us some specimen numbers of an English work which is being introduced in this country by the well-known publishing house of Messrs. Virtue & Co., of London, who for the last thirty years have been supplying the American people with the great Art publication known as the London Art Journal, and who are, indeed, still the proprietors of it, but have sold for a term of four years the right of publican in this country to Messrs. D. Appleton & Co.

But while the Art Journal afforded splendid proofs of the perfection steel engraving has reached in the Old World, we find the ROYAL ACADEMY COLLECTION OF SHAKESPERIAN ILLUSTRATIONS, with the famous text of Charles Knight and notes lately revised by him, one of the grandest specimens of book-making we have ever seen. The steel engravings are taken from the original paintings of such artists as Cope, Frith, Leslie, Maclise, Ward and other Royal Academicians and engraved by Greatbach, Armytage, Clint and others, especially for this work. Each engraving is 5x8 inches in size and every line is clear and effective. The letter-press also deserves favorable remark, the type being large and clear, a great improvement over editions which strain the eyes with fine type. The notes are very complete and conveniently arranged on each page for reference, which is a great advantage to the reader.

Capt. P. Adair, of London, is introducing the work throughout New England and is making a brisk canvass of our city, supplying it in numbers to subscribers. To all students of the Great Bard and lovers of Art the work recommends itself, and as a people's edition it is most attractive. J. P. Hardy, Esq., our well known Bangor artist, highly indorses the excellence of the engravings as works of art.

H. W. JOHNS' PATENT

ASBESTOS PAINTS

ALL COLORS, READY FOR USE.

Opinions of the Boston Press.

H. W. Johns' Patent Asbestos Paints stand very high. Nothing is used in their preparation but the purest and best linseed oil and colors in combination with the Patent "Asbestos Paint Body," which adds an elastic quality never before attained in any paint.—Boston Journal.

Less coloring matter is required in the manufacture of the Asbestos Paints than in any other liquid or ready-mixed paints, they possess a super or body, and are not liable to "chalk," crack or scale. The Asbestos Paints are especially adapted for factories, exposed brick walls, fences, iron work, villas, cottages, outbuildings, etc.—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Many paints are called fire-proof, with reference, no doubt, to the pigments and not the oils with which they are combined, the Asbestos paints will be found a protection against this element superior to any.—Boston Daily Globe.

Competition in price is not intended with the so-called cheap paints with which the market is flooded, nor with "chemical" or other paints, which are composed largely of lime, water, and other inexpensive ingredients.—Boston Evening Traveller.

PRINCESSE COSTUMES

The French dresses imported for models at the furnishing houses embody the leading features and novelties for fall and winter attire. The word costume is used by French modistes for walking dresses only, but the late importations show princesse costumes that are suitable for both house and street. The first impression on seeing the new dresses is that they are single garments cut and made together like Gabrielle dresses, and very elaborately trimmed. It is evidently the design of the modiste to give the effect of the princesse dress, yet these princesse costumes have always a separate lower skirt, and their over dress is quite as often in two pieces as in the single polonaise. The two pieces of this over dress are, however, so intricately and so closely combined that it is often difficult to tell where the basque leaves off and the over skirt begins, and the appearance is given of a close-clinging polonaise. To do this the lower edge of the basque is left untrimmed, and the upper part of the over-skirt drapery comes up above the edge of the basque and conceals it. Sometimes only the front of the basque is hidden, and the back is a well-defined postilion, in other cases the back is concealed, and the front of the basque are shown, sometimes the whole edge is tucked away out of sight and there are not wanting instances of regular basques richly trimmed on the edge slashed, and with revers in each seam, though the plain round cuirass has probably had its day. The effect of the cuirass is, however obtained by hooking or otherwise attaching the overskirt drapery near the edge of the basque, which is fitted plainly over the waist and low down on the hips. This over-skirt drapery is attached to the lower skirt usually, indeed, it is the exception in French dresses to find the two skirts separated. There is very little 'looping up' in the new draperies, and all bunching bouffant effects are out of style. The low draperies that were introduced last season will be universally used for winter dresses. These consist of folds, pleats, and wrinkled breadths sewed across the front and sides of lower skirts, either straight across or curved, or else they are placed diagonally, but always in easy, irregular fashion, not set and stiff, and in most cases the sides are arranged differently. The back drapery, as we have said before, is very slight, quite low down, and is made up of bows, scarfs, and pendants. A few regular round over-skirts are shown but these are not festooned to look bouffant, as at present. They are drawn together low down in the back, and held there by large long-looped bows.

COMBINATION COSTUMES

As this is to be a hard winter, the reader will be glad to know that combinations in costumes remain in fashion. There are combinations in fabrics and combinations in colors. Not a single suit is found made entirely of one material, hence short patterns and partly worn dresses can be used again as parts of new suits. There is less shading than formerly, thus, instead of a dress of one color showing tone upon tone of that color, bright contrasts in relief up on dark colors are preferred. For instance the dark blue, green or plum-colored silks of last winter will form excellent foundation skirts for new over dresses of wool or of silk brocade of the same color, which will be brightened up with facings, knots and pleatings or cardinal silk. There are four shades of brown that will be used for costumes, these are variations of seal and bronze brown. The myrtle or Russian green costumes are largely imported in fine woolen stuffs, in silks, brocades, and velvets. Plum-color and navy blue suits are shown in profession. One pretty way of relieving these is to trim them with bias bands of cardinal silk these are almost concealed with row after row of blue or plum-colored soutache, giving only the merest glimpses of the cardinal trimmings between.

The woolen polonaises and over dresses are of laine carree— ... —all of one color, or else they are partly plain twilled serge or camel's hair and partly striped or tufted, making with the silk or velvet of the underskirt three materials in the costume. Gilded stripes on seal brown tufted goods are used for the sleeves, bias bands ... for parts of the polonaise sometimes appearing as one of the side forms, or in the large square collar, or it may be forming most of the lower drapery of a garment that is solid color in all its upper parts. In description these new arrangements may seem ..., but French taste has made them very pretty and not at all striking.

Silk over dresses are usually brocaded, or what is called plumetis, small silk figures, or else in the raised velvet designs showing leaves, scales for geometrical figures. Conspicuous ... and well defined stripes seem to have lost favor. Small ... knickerbocker style ... One color ... brocaded silks ... brocades made up elegant ... with gray figures on blue or plum ground ... gold on green and even ... cardinal figures on green with much ... green ... silk pleatings for trimmings. One of the handsomest suits is a velvet skirt of pale drab with narrow velvet ruffles headed by fine gray feather trimmings, over this is a polonaise of drab and brown silk brocade in very small figures trimmed with feather border.

LOWER SKIRTS

Lower skirts of costumes are almost concealed by the long polonaise or over skirt drapery, yet upon the shape of this foundation skirt depends much of the beauty of the costume. This lower skirt is narrow clinging in front and on the sides and long behind. Three yards is its average width around the bottom. The three front gores are sloped at the top so closely that there is no gathering or pleating to the belt. The two straight back breadths are sewed to the belt in one large box pleat, and have a drawing string about half a yard below the waist to draw all the fullness backward. Skirts of French dresses are not lined they are bound with braid. They are widely faced with crinoline, on which is laid a narrower facing of alpaca the color of the dress, and the dress material is then turned up on this in the old-fashioned way. Silk skirts are the foundation of most toilettes. Heavy camel's-hair and velvet skirts that would make too much bulk on the hips are fitted plainly around the top and have deep Spanish flounces below to give the necessary fullness, even in such cases two breadths of wide camel's-hair are found sufficient for the Spanish flounce.

The trimming of lower skirts shows little novelty. Instead of knife pleating going out of use, it will be more worn than ever, especially in narrow widths, finely pleated with the edges lapping, and thus forming a single cluster around the bottom of the skirt. The same trimming extends all around the skirt, but is apt to be narrower in front where the tablier falls over it than it is in the short train that is not so much hidden. In regard to the length of skirts, we are sorry to say that, while the front and sides are short enough for comfortable walking the back breadths are long enough to sweep the sidewalks. These back breadths, however, are gathered into a small compass to form a sort of queen train, which is very narrow, and therefore easily lifted out of the dirt of the street. A favorite design for trimming the skirt is two lapped knife-pleatings, each three inches deep, then a broad bias band and two narrower effect knife-pleatings. Another is two box-pleatings with a knife-pleating between, or the reverse of this, with only a single box-pleating. These new pleatings are all pressed very flat from top to bottom, and are not permitted to fly out at the edges like ruffles. It is also preferable that the flounces should be of the wool or other material of the over dress rather than of the silk of the lower skirt. The over dress is usually trimmed with fringe or with silk pleating.

BLACK SUITS.

The richest black silk suits have over dresses of black brocade, either silk brocade or else that with raised velvet figures. The brocaded basque has sleeves to match and is trimmed about the neck and wrists with folds and pleatings. The edge of the basque is not trimmed as it is hidden beneath the brocade drapery which forms the over skirt, and the effect of a polonaise is produced. Very rich fringe edges the drapery. The lower skirt is of silk, with a cluster-pleated flounce between. Over this is a long over skirt trimmed with wide, heavy fringe. The over skirt is sewed to the lower skirt and is ... one side, while the other ... ed bows placed quite ... on it. Feather ... with black costumes. ... will be most stylish ... silk dresses, as well as for the long cloaks that are to be worn over them. Black cashmere suits and the square-figured woolens will be trimmed with galloon braids, fringe, and silk pleatings.

DRESS WAISTS, SLEEVES, ETC.

The seams of dress waists follow the natural outlines of the figure, and have less of the masculine cut lately given. Thus, though shoulder-seams are still short rather than long, they are not to be chopped off as of late with sleeves set in as high as in a gentleman's coat, nor are they to be placed as far forward as they have been. The object now is to make the figure look slender and long waisted, hence backs of dresses must be narrow, and to produce this the shoulder seam is cut further back than has been the custom for three or four years. The long seams in the back of dresses are most varied. Some waists have two side bodies, others have but one, while others are French shape, while still others are in the French shape, without any side form. There are many dresses with the long seams that begin on the shoulders making long side bodies, while others again have the short seams that begin in the armhole. The darts in front are close together and very short giving the appearance of a low bust. The neck of the dress is as high as it is possible to wear it and in many cases has two collars, one of which stands, while the other is turned down in Byron shape. There are double breasted diagonal, square and close front. Trimmings usually extend from top to bottom of the waist being wide at the top sloping at the taper, and widening below the waist line. Plastrons of silk are cut in this way. Sometimes there is a single plastron down the middle, while others have two plastrons set on a little beyond the button holes. This is a tasteful and simple fashion. Usually there are two rows of buttons on each plastron, and one for buttoning down the middle making five rows of buttons instead of the regulation three rows as at present. Sleeves are close coat shape with scarcely room enough to get the hand through at the opening. Pretty little revers and narrow pleated frills form the cuffs which, to be stylish must be simple and not showily obtrusive. The tendency in the richest dresses is to have the sleeves match the waist, yet there are many combination costumes with silk or velvet in woolen over dresses. Buttons appear on the sleeves as on the body. There is a great fancy for embroidered buttons with a star wrought on each button. Pockets are both useful and ornamental, and of most varied shapes. Long-looped bows extend down the fronts of polonaise and play a pretty part, and also an important one in brightening up the new costumes.

TOURNURES.

All bouffant tournures are abandoned. The long slender bustle that holds the lower part of the skirt away from the feet will be retained, though many ladies prefer pleatings or fans of crinoline placed inside the skirt of each costume. The slope from the waist to the end of the train is gradual, and must be natural looking, as the skirt falls away from the wearer when walking, otherwise the graceful effect of the new over dresses and shapely cloaks will be destroyed.—Harper's Bazar

To Owners and Masters of Vessels and the Public

Without my knowledge or consultation an advertisement appeared in this paper some two weeks since headed "Port Warden Notice," giving the impression that no acts of mine are valid unless some associate P Warden is present and signs certificates, and all fees paid to his Honor J D WARREN. I now say, all that talk of his is perfect Hum Bug, as the statutes of the State of Maine will show, as passed by her Legislature in 1873, Sec. 6, 7 and 8. I will guarantee all and every one of my official acts, and shall allow no one to receive my fees, and ask no favors of that gentleman in any respect.

Allied Enemies to Health.

In many of the fairest and most fertile districts of North and Tropical America, air and water are allied enemies to health, both being impregnated with the poisonous miasmata which produce chills and fever, bilious remittents and febrile disorders of a still more malignant type. Fortunately, a sure preventive and curative of such destructive maladies is to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a vegetable preparation which is infinitely to be preferred, both on account of its efficacy and freedom from all hurtful properties, to the deleterious mineral and alkaloid remedies of the pharmacopœia. It is moreover, the reigning specific for dyspepsia, debility, constipation, urinary troubles, rheumatism and nervousness, promotes appetite and sleep, and is a capital antidote to depression of spirits.
